

Title: Reading and Movies

Target: Primary children and their parents

(Search a related book after watch a movie)

Abstract of the Video:

Ms. Chan May-kuen, Sylvia, the Principal of Ying Wa Primary School, addressed the importance of reading in English learning but it should start with students' interest. Parents may use some interesting questions to guide children's readings. Certainly, parents ought to read together with their children. For example, parents and children could find a related book to read after they saw a movie. That would facilitate mutual communication and confidence building.

Advice for the Post-video Activities

Here below recommends two children's books that had been edited as movies:

1. "Wonder"

A child was born with a severe facial difference. His parents tried hard to help the child overcoming extraordinary eyesight and abuse. The movie transmitted a message of how it would be comforting and warm among the contacts of people through the different views of children and eventually achieved mutual acceptance from the others as well as the child himself.
